PRACTICE AREAS

Litigation | Business Litigation | Life Sciences | Appellate | Product Liability | Class & Collective Action | General Counsel Services

Meredith Lee is a member in the Litigation Department. Her practice includes defending product liability actions, including mass-tort actions and putative class actions. She also concentrates on defending complex business disputes, including breach of contract, noncompete litigation, and business torts. Meredith practices in state and federal courts and has represented clients at the trial court and appellate levels.

In addition to litigation defense, Meredith represents clients with respect to the development and marketing of consumer products. This includes advising clients with respect to the FDA's regulation of food, dietary supplement, cosmetic, and drug products sold to consumers.

LEADERSHIP

Meredith is a member of Miller & Martin's Policy Committee (the firm's governing body). She also serves as chair of the firm's Appellate practice.

EXPERIENCE

Appellate Practice

- Successfully represented commercial real estate owner in obtaining affirmance of summary judgment in a commercial lease dispute arising from tenant abandonment and nonpayment and involving enforcement of a personal guaranty, defeating first-breach and anticipatory repudiation defenses and securing remand for an award of appellate attorney's fees (Tennessee Court of Appeals, 2026).
