Litigator Presents on Key Considerations in Maneuvering Automotive Disputes at Used Car Week 2023

Posted in Event on November 14, 2023

Jason McCarter, litigation attorney and chair of Miller & Martin's Automotive Practice Group, presented the topic "Time to Fight: Prepping for an Automotive Dispute" as part of the National Remarketing Conference during Used Car Week 2023 held November 6-9 in Scottsdale, Arizona. The presentation covered key considerations as automotive companies formulate a battleplan when disputes arise and litigation is looming, including strategy, information privileges, evidence holds, forum selection, pre-filing maneuvers, and counsel selection, all with an emphasis on how these actually play out in auction and remarketing cases.

Jason McCarter is a skilled business litigator who represents automotive, technology, and other business enterprises in complex commercial disputes and regulatory investigations. As chair of the firm's Automotive practice, Jason is often called upon to counsel and advocate for clients facing contract, business tort, secured lending, and licensing issues. Jason is a frequent speaker and writer on financial and automotive risk and regulatory issues.

Used Car Week is presented by Cherokee Media Group, publisher of Auto Remarketing, Auto Remarketing Canada, SubPrime Auto Finance News/BHPH Report and Auto Fin Journal. Used Car Week unites all corners of the used-car industry from remarketing to dealer-consignor relations and auto finance to discuss trends, forecasting for the future and prepping for the road ahead. As part of Used Car Week, the National Remarketing Conference provides a forum of analysis, education and discussion that moves the wholesale auto industry forward. Programming is focused on business intelligence for vehicle consignors, brick and mortar auto auctions, online auctions, and the technology and services providers.

Click here to learn more about this topic or the Used Car Week conference.

Click here for PowerPoint slides from this presentation.