Miller & Martin’s Women’s Network Continues Partnership with The Launch Pad

Posted in News on January 17, 2025

Miller & Martin’s Women’s Network is pleased to continue its community partnership with The Launch Pad, a Chattanooga non-profit organization offering support to local women in recovery. The Launch Pad provides residential, 12-step based sober living to women recovering from alcohol and drug addiction. The organization currently serves as a safe haven for 49 residents in five group homes. During their stay, The Launch Pad residents attend regular AA/NA meetings, participate in weekly group therapy, and obtain gainful employment.

This holiday season, Miller & Martin’s Women’s Network donated robes, cold weather essentials, and notebooks and pens for journaling therapy, as well as various personal care items for The Launch Pad’s residents.

The female attorneys who comprise Miller & Martin’s Women’s Network in the firm’s Chattanooga office intend to continue their support of The Launch Pad residents throughout 2025 by sponsoring resident fellowship events, conducting resume review or professional mentorship sessions, and/or volunteering their time to improve the residence grounds.

“We are thrilled to support the Launch Pad, an organization which helps local women recover, support one another, and reach their full potential. The Launch Pad’s commitment to serving its residents is truly inspiring, and its positive impact on the Chattanooga community is undeniable.” said Lynzi J. Archibald, the Chattanooga Co-chair of Miller & Martin’s Women’s Network.
